

Course Title: Basic Skills in the Chinese Language

Course Code: HUM 139

Course Description:

This course offers a simplified analytical study of the fundamental aspects of the Chinese language. Students will acquire a diverse range of vocabulary, mastering basic Chinese grammar and verb conjugation, phonetics, characters, and cultural elements. At the same time, students learn common simple sentence structures used in daily life to develop their Chinese communication skills.

Course Objectives:

Successful completion of the course will enable students to

- communicate basic ideas to others in Chinese.
- introduce themselves and inquire about others in specific situations.
- understand of various aspects of life in China, such as family life and leisure activities.

Learning Outcomes:

- Understand simple texts in Chinese.
- Apply vocabulary knowledge to situations like introductions and pleasantries.
- Write short messages and simple descriptions in Chinese.